

Agriculture & Forestry Today with Commissioner Bob Odom

Weather appears to be the number one factor influencing agriculture again this year, Commissioner of Agriculture and Forestry Bob Odom said.

"Crop prices and costs of production always play a large role in what happens in agriculture but this year weather is key," Odom said. "Hurricanes during the fall blew in soybean rust from South America and fluctuations in rainfall affected yields across the state."

In November, Asian soybean rust, a very aggressive form of soybean rust, was confirmed for the first time in the United States in Louisiana. Weather maps and data show that the soybean rust spores blew into the state via winds from Hurricane Ivan.

"Soybean rust has the potential to cause irreversible damage to the nation's soybean industry," Odom said. "Costs of production could rise $25 per acre for producers, which in turn could force some of them out of business. It's a serious problem and we're working hard to help the state's producers before planting in the spring. We don't want to be left depending on some foreign country for soybeans."

Statewide average rainfall for the year is about 15 inches above normal with most of the rain coming in early spring and late fall. There are no regions of the state experiencing below average rainfall this year.

"It's one thing to have higher than average rainfall spread across an entire year, but that's not what happened here," Odom explained. "We had days and days of heavy downpours in clusters during the year, one being in the spring and the other in the fall."

Rainfall statistics from the Office of State Climatology show northwest Louisiana, which includes the Shreveport-Bossier area, had received about 17 inches above the normal average through the first week of December. Normally, the area receives 49 inches of rain by Dec. 1. So far this year the figure was 67 inches. North-central Louisiana, which includes Ruston and Monroe, had about 14 inches more and the northeast region, which includes Winnsboro and Lake Providence, also had about 14 inches above normal.

West-central Louisiana, which includes Natchitoches and Leesville, was about 23 inches above normal through the first week of December. Normally, the area receives about 51 inches of rain; this year the figure is 74 inches. The central region of the state, which includes Alexandria and Bunkie, had about 15 inches above normal, and the east-central region, which includes Baton Rouge, Hammond and Bogalusa, had 9 inches above normal.

Southwest Louisiana, which includes DeRidder and Crowley, had rainfall of about 15 inches above normal through the first week of December. South-central Louisiana, which includes Donaldsonville and Morgan City, had about 14 inches above normal, and southeast Louisiana, which includes New Orleans and Houma, had about 10 inches more than the normal average.

"Some form of agriculture, whether it is row crop farming, cattle ranching, growing pine seedlings or producing poultry, is taking place in all of these areas, and the rain is having an effect on the end result," Odom said.

According to the November crop report from the Louisiana Agricultural Statistics Office, all major crop yields, except for corn, are expected to decrease when final numbers come in for 2004. Sugarcane yields, if realized, will be at their lowest since 1993. But, there was some good news for sugar producers.

"We're hearing that sucrose levels at some mills are at record levels. That's not the way it is everywhere, but in some places it's that good," Odom said.

Final information on the state's agriculture crops will be available at the end of January.

Have You Seen Me?

Livestock Brand Inspectors with the Louisiana Department of Agriculture and Forestry and Bossier Parish Sheriff Larry Dean are trying to locate a missing large, black Angus bull.

The bull is branded and is believed to have disappeared in the area around La. Highway 527 and Goat Hill Road in southern Bossier Parish. Other cattle belonging to the same farmer may be with the missing bull.

Anyone who has seen a bull in this area fitting the description should contact the Livestock Brand Commission at (318) 949-3225 or 1-800-558-9741, or the Bossier Parish Sheriff's Office at (318) 965-2203.

Pontchartrain Vineyards, continued from page 2

ings listed below with exceptional quality and style. While this group is just getting started, clearly they are already at the top of their game!

We expect even greater things from this group in the years to come.

The Seagos were one of four wineries selected from the 28 "Undiscovered Gems" to be invited to the unveiling of the new wine list, featuring some 650 wines, last fall. Once they got to New York, they learned their "Le Grand Louis - Syrah (Shiraz)" was one of six red wines chosen to be poured for 125 members of the media attending a wine tasting luncheon before the formal unveiling.

"This is an extraordinary honor for us and is really beyond anything we could have reasonably expected to have achieved at this relatively early stage of our wine production efforts," John said in a press release issued last fall.

To continue promoting Pontchartrain Vineyards, the Seagos host Jazz'n the Vines outdoor concerts in the vineyard every Saturday from early May to late October. The Seagos also operate a French provincial-style wine tasting room and visitors center where their wines can be purchased by the glass, bottle or case.

"If people come here, they'll buy wine, no doubt about it," John said. "But we've got to do marketing to get them here. This is a destination."

Officials attempting to find cattle near Bossier/Webster Parish line

Louisiana Department of Agriculture and Forestry Livestock Brand Commission officials are attempting to secure and identify 23 head of cattle scattered in woods along Interstate 20 near the Bossier-Webster Parish line as a result of an 18-wheeler accident.

State Police Troop G called the Brand Commission for assistance after a tractor-trailer carrying 95, 500-pound heifers ran off the road at 3 a.m. Sunday morning, Dec. 5, at milepost 38, one mile west of Goodwill Road, Commissioner of Agriculture and Forestry Bob Odom said.

Anyone with information about the missing calves should contact their local sheriff's office or the Louisiana Livestock Brand Commission at (318) 949-3225 or 1-800-558-9741.

The trailer and cab were ripped open from the collision with pine trees at the edge of the highway right-of-way, Odom said.

The driver of the truck, James Martin of Elmore, Ala., was not hurt.

Twenty-two cattle, owned by Mercer Livestock of Alabama, were killed or euthanized as a result of injuries sustained in the accident, Odom said.

Fifty head of livestock were recovered, but 23 remain at large in the forested area along I-20. Stray cattle on the highway reportedly caused at least five subsequent accidents.

Brand Commission inspectors have been assisting State Police to identify the missing cattle and establishing ownership of the animals, which may have mingled with local cattle foraging in the woods.

The heifers should have sale barn tags located on the hip and metal vaccination tags in the right ear. They were valued at $47,500.

The State Capitol Rotunda in Baton Rouge is decked out for the holidays with a 19-foot Leyland cypress Christmas tree donated by Christmas Forest Tree Farm in Zachary. The tree, decorated by Louisiana Dept. of Agriculture and Forestry employees, features 20 hand-painted magnolia ornaments created by the Ouachita Art Guild of West Monroe.
